Intro to Family History and Forensic Genealogy

Basic Family History Research
Methods and How Forensic
Techniques Can Enhance Them.

Speaker: Lisa Foster RN, FNC

How can forensic investigative techniques help to solve family history problems? Come to this presentation and find out. The area of forensic genealogy is a modern and exciting branch of family history research, but it's not off limits for beginners. Careful analysis of photos and other documents can provide the necessary clues to move our research forward. This presentation will provide the basics of good family history research and an introduction to forensic genealogy as well.

Lisa Foster has a certificate in genealogy from Boston University, and she has attended the National Institute for Genealogical Studies focused on American and English areas. Genealogy is Lisa's passion and she has been working on her own family history for over 35 years. She helps others by teaching and mentoring family history as a volunteer at the Yuba City California Stake Family History Library. Lisa is a forensic nurse and applies her knowledge in teaching courses in Family History & Genealogy at Yuba College Community College.
