Tips for Breaking Down Brick Walls

Speaker: Lisa Gorrell

Get out your sledgehammer! This talk just might help you make some headway if your family history research has hit a “Brick Wall”. Certainly every genealogist has come across a problem that seems impossible to solve, yet there is hope. Come hear an experienced researcher share her tips for breaking down these brick walls and get ready to pull down a few bricks from yours!

Lisa Gorrell has been tracing her ancestors for nearly 20 years. Since she retired from full-time work as an instructor for BART, she has been actively researching and speaking in the genealogy field. Her specialties are in 20th century, Midwest, Southern, and Western records. She currently serves on the board of directors for two societies: Contra Costa County Historical Society and the California Genealogical Society, and is a past president of the Contra Costa County Genealogy Society. She volunteers with the Mt. Diablo Audubon Society in her spare time.
